Carnaby's Black-Cockatoo workshop – a fun and informative day!

On Tuesday 16 July, Moore Catchment Council, with funding provided through the State NRM Office, held an informative workshop on Carnaby's Black-Cockatoos.

The event was a great success with more than twenty-five people attending. Attendees were impressed with the presentations by Wally Kerkhoff from the Kerkhoff Carnaby Group, Sarah Mason, a farmer and keen Carnaby enthusiast and Paula and Kylie from Kaarakin Black-Cockatoo Conservation Centre. The highlight of the day was meeting Chasey the Carnaby, brought up from Kaarakin, who wasn't shy for the camera.

Several attendees also visited Wally's house where he cares for Carnaby's and builds nesting logs before going on a short walk through Candy's Bush Reserve with Jenny Borger from WWF to identify Carnaby feeding and nesting plant species. Unfortunately the walk was cut short due to the rain...but we can't complain.

Thank you to all who attended the workshop.
